“ Fond memories of "Sister Gill". She was THE best librarian a ward ever knew! I was young and newly called to the Relief Society presidency. At Homemaking meeting one night, there was talk...only talk...between me and the other presidency members that maybe I should have a key to the library. Early the next morning, Sister Gill called me up and said that she heard I might have been in the library the night before. (I had not, I swear!) After that, I was always so extra careful about the library and the Lord's resources. She was always so fiercely protective of them. I have thought of her often over the years and have tried to always follow her fine example. Another treasure gone.

“ My step mother was 92 when she passed away in January. I will miss her terribly. She taught me so much about what really mattered in life; family, truth, integrity, honesty and the rewards of giving back. She loved my Dad, her daughter, Cheryl, and the granddaughter she and Dad raised, Debra, as much as any Mom could love her kids. As the grandkids came along, she passed along her strength, wisdom and love to them and they all became amazing parents to their kids and children of God that I know He is so proud of. As dementia took away Lorna's ability to communicate with her family, her work had already been done. She had already instilled her love of Christ and the wisdom of how living in His spirit could carry forward into future generations. Those generations accepted her gift with open arms and continue to pass on her wisdom today to their children and their children. What a legacy!! I love you. I respect you and honor your life. Love, Karen
